In my opinion, a problem of computer games addiction is one of the most important issue, that people have to solve.

Firstly, the timeless sitting and playing computer games every day can affect the children's education. While studying at school pupils should pay all of their attention to the lessons and homework. And if they don't, they receive a lot of bad marks. Unfortunately, these bad marks sometimes make great influence on the friendships with relatives and parents.

Secondly, in most cases, kids, who are spending almost all of their time playing computer games aren't able to develop in the society. But we know that a good development can only be achieved ^(when you are) by living in your society, among your friends, relatives etc. Children, who miss the opportunity of ~~to stay and~~ simply talking to someone in real life usually don't become successful and social in the future.

And finally, the most terrible affection, which gadgets make on the children's lives is health problems. Can you imagine how you will feel yourself after sitting in front of the computer all day? I assume, pretty bad. For kids such health problems as bad vision, weak bones and muscles can influence their future health a lot.

To sum up, I think, that in order to partially solve the problem of computer game addiction, parents need to talk to their kids more, make them interested in something, for example, help them to find a hobby etc. This way people will be able to save children from the computer addiction.

More and more young people spend most of their time playing computer games. How can we help children to overcome this addiction?

Nowadays in our modern ^{society} world computers and other gadgets became one of the most important parts of our life. People use them for their jobs by working online and for other important things they do. Today I would like to talk about the other side of computer world, which is game addiction in children.

Computer games are very popular in our time. Adults and children watch funny videos about computer games or even play by themselves. After all this cool things children with not a lot of life experience can't manage their school time and because of that kids get bad grades at school and have no social life. They also become aggressive and it's hard for them to concentrate. School needs you to be disciplined and motivated but these requirements are hard to accomplish when you don't have good enough hours of sleep, food or don't do you homework at all, because you only play computer games in your room without any action. You stay in your little flat and not doing anything. You don't talk with your friends and don't go outside which gives you no social life life. There's a lot of violence in computer games and for a lot of kids it's a very bad influence, which makes kids aggressive.

We need to be with our children when they have a though time and teach them how to do things properly. Love them and explain the right thing.

More and more young people spend most of their time playing computer games. How can we help children to overcome this addiction? ~~st~~

Of course, in order to solve a problem we should take a look on what causes the problem. Here are ^{gr} stated several factors, which determine children's addiction:

Firstly, one of the key factors is having little to no success in receiving good marks at school. Bad grades undermine children's self-esteem and their craving for knowledge. So, instead, they become highly interested in something fun and easy to understand and would rather spend time with their eyes fixed to the screen rather than learning something new.

Secondly, it would be essential to point out that addicted children are often shy ones. No social life generally means that these children could have some trouble in communication and, therefore, integration into society, which in some cases leads to bad grades and bullying (so these factors can correlate) and among the things that could bring peace to the shy kids are computer games, which require little to no socialization skills.

Lastly, massive addiction could come as a result of not being pleased with other ways of spending free time: reading books, solving puzzles, etc. It all looks boring to Gen Alpha kids, who are used to flashing screens with colorful images, which are widely used as a main element in computer games.

Certainly, it's too eager to claim that this addiction is easily treatable. But at least it's possible to do so if the right approach is used.

First of all, I'd like to draw a line between just playing computer games and having an addiction to them. It's perfectly normal to spend for 2 hours after school on games, but trying to spend as ~~much~~ ^{as} much time as possible doesn't look like a healthy behaviour. I'll analyze problems of such addiction and write my opinion on how to help people with it ~~in the~~ ^{in the} end.

Bad grades is a common thing among students who have computer game addiction. Let's think of what student does after school. He has two options: to do his homework, or to play video games. Person with addiction would first do his homework and then play games. On the other hand person with such addiction doesn't have any hobbies and playing games is his favourite thing to do, so he'll probably only play games.

A lot of psychology studies show that it is extremely important to see face of the person or the person you talk to, to obtain important social skills, but when you play a game you usually only chat. Because of that people now have problems with even basic conversations.

Students with such addiction don't have needed grades, social skills, and they even don't want to get further ~~to~~ education after school.

In my opinion the best thing to do is to find one's hobby, which will make you even happier than video games do, and show you another bright side of life is.

Now^{sp} days, not only teenagers and kids, also middle^{lev} age and old people spend most of their time playing computer games.

Computer games affect^{gr} on teenagers in^{gr} bad way. They become more aggressive and less concentrated^{sp}, that means, that teenagers ~~(not)~~ ^{are} doing homework not as well, as they would, if they ~~not~~ ST play computer games.

In schools, teenagers often playing games on their phones or tablets while teacher telling new material on lesson. And after lesson students understand worse than students, who ~~didn't~~ ST played on lesson.

There are some types of people, who prefer to spend all their time at home playing computer games. And usually they ~~don't~~ have any real friends, only online friends. In my opinion these friends ~~can't~~ ^{lev} give you such emotions, such as real friends.

But also, simple gamer also can be the person, who ~~hasn't~~ only friends. We can meet this type of person every where, and also in school.

So, how can we help children to overcome this addiction? We can talk to kid and tell him to spend only 1-2 hours playing computer games. Secondly, we can buy gadgets for kid only ~~(in teenage)~~ when he reach^{gr} eighteen years old. Lastly, we can use some apps ~~which~~ which block gadget after ~~(some time)~~ 15 hours using it.

To sum up, I can say that computer games ^{gr} affect on us in bad way. So we should play no more than 2 hours ^{gr} in day.
